Hungry Ferret Causes Rail Scare, BBC News 19th May 2003

A hungry ferret has caused panic on a train by racing around carriages and eating the driver's lunch, a train company says.

Frightened passengers screamed as the stray animal clambered over their laps after jumping on board at Long Eaton station in Derbyshire.

The feral animal ran at top speed around the Midland Mainline service, before it sneaked into the driver's cab and dived into his lunch box.

A company spokesman said the driver then fed the ferret his cheese sandwiches and biscuits to keep the animal happy.

RSPCA inspectors were called on board and took the ferret away in a cardboard box.
